Laura Christner is a single Amish woman in her 30s.

Teaching first grade students is her way of having children in her life as she's considered an old maid by Amish standards. Always on the look-out to make the children's lives better, her heart goes out to a mother little boy, Johnny who has a stutter. Two maiden sisters, Agnes and Frances Hammond, act as unofficial matchmakers in the community and when Agnes meets John Krauss, she arranges a dinner and they invite Laura. But the wrong kind of sparks fly when Laura realizes that John is Johnny's father and he becomes cantankerous and defensive about the medical help his son needs and while he frustrates Laura, she doesn't know the full background and the pain he has suffered. When his father turns up to take his school out of school, Johnny who has been injured, wants Laura in his life. What is John going to do? Will Laura be able to make a difference in their lives?
