Currently out of print. Training horses at his stable is Danny's job and he's good at it, but when it comes to prickly Seth, a newcomer to the village who's refusing to let Danny use his field for the annual gymkhana, just how tight a rein will Danny need to tame Seth's temper? Why is Seth so stubborn about the event? As the men explore their attraction to each other, fears and weaknesses are exposed, leaving them with difficult obstacles to conquer before they can get a clear round.

This story is also available in the Horsing Around anthology.
