Summer and Young are both 19 year old men. They are also both gay. This is where their similarities end. Young is the son of a doctor, while Summer is a 4'11" young man that was blinded by a bully on the night of his HS graduation. After trying to kill himself, he was put in the hospital. Young, a volunteer Pre-Med student, meets Summer, and in short time they become friends. As the first few days go on, both start having feelings for each other, but not based upon looks or anything superficial. Their connection is different, of a deeper meaning. Summer is given the chance for an operation that could restore his sight. Young is worried that if Summer could see him, he would reject him. What is the secret that Young holds that could make him worried about the outcome of the operation? Sometimes love is more than what is on the outside of a person, it is what is in the heart.
