An American, an Englishman, and an Australian walk into a massage parlour... Cairns, Australia, 1991. Archeologist wunderkind Jack Staples is the talk of the telly once again. Discoverers of the lost compass of Captain James Cook, Staples and his best friend and protégé Charles Kensington are on holiday in the Land Down Under, sitting on their find as offers from museums and auction houses pour in. But when the compass is stolen by an antiques trafficker known as the Waltzing Matilda, Staples and Kensington are joined by the pride of Sydney's police force, Detective Sergeant James Russell. The Aussie's incognito scheme gets the trio inside the crime lord's center of operations, a sleazy massage parlour. But a brief conversation with the Matilda will send the trio on an adventure of prehistoric proportions.
